thank you James!! it is on my desktop computer where I see this...on my phoneI am also being asked to do a software update for iOS 11.2.2 it provides a security update and is recommended for all users...should I update this you think?
on another note, unfortunately the credit card thing is still not working for me...so weird...

So... on your phone? (I haven't had coffee yet.)
If it's on your phone, open Settings > Your Name @ top > iCloud and if prompted enter your iCloud password there. If it's on your desktop, then go System Preferences > iCloud and enter if prompted.

If nether of those places are prompting you, ignore it.

Thank you,

I see it on my icon down in my tool bar that I have an "update" (the number 1 is in a red circle in the right hand corner of the icon) Then I click the icon and the iCloud box comes up...it has a triangle with and exclamation point and states: Update Apple ID Settings Some account services require you to sign in again

Hi James! Hope you are enjoying your Saturday...you do not need to answer me now!

"iCloud preferences wants to make changes to my account" Do I want this?! ha..I'm not sure...Can you let me know...?

thank you!
