WiFi calling (the function that allows the phone to use WiFi internet to make calls if there's poor AT&T reception) is busted on everyone's phone at the moment. I think the new firewall is blocking it.
My day tomorrow is pretty full. I might be able to get up there if my morning appointment finishes early, but I can't promise.

They moved in a couple weekends ago and need me to finish the last bits of their new setup. They've been (im)patiently waiting for me since I got back from LA.
