I don't remember the exact number, but I want to say around 50. I had the box all packed up and ready to go 3 weeks ago, but had to leave town suddenly for work and wasn't able to send them until I returned to the city. The backing on all of the pads comes off quite easily, all you have to do is bend the pad slightly and it cracks right off. These are just the ones which are completely already off or half way off. I won't be placing any more orders with you until I know that this issue can be remedied. None of the small samples you sent me before had this issue, so I'm sure it can be remedied. I've also included in the box a sample of an old notepad we had made years ago(I don't know with which company) which does not have this same issue; the glue is very pliable, not brittle.

you can affix the cardboard backing properly, I will place another order as the coloring and quality of paper is good, but I am concerned about the backing coming off of so many of the pads.
