Subject: LSJ canvas proofs

Here are photos of the 2 proofs on 2 different canvases. I've taken pictures of each canvas next to the paper print I made from the Epson printer to show the difference in color tone. The canvas prints are pulling a lot of red, especially canvas #2 (It has a pinkish tone naturally to the canvas it seems) I'm not sure if you want to wait to see these proofs in person before proceeding with the large print? Or should I have them go ahead now and make another print test and ask them to tone down the red and try and match the Epson print closer?

Canvas #1 is the left and top right. The bottom right is the print I made on Epson.

Canvas #2 are the 2 on the left; my print from Epson on the right

Canvas #1 on top; Canvas #2 on bottom
