Dear [REDACTED],

The Telekom transmitter that connects our town (Wewak) with the =est of the country has been out. The cell phone system is working intermittently but cannot access internet. My brother is going =o go up to a hotel which has a satellite system tonight to send the pictures =very expensive). The town is down to one power generator and certain =arts of the town get power at different times, not predictable times either =nd both power and Telekom are needed to send pictures.

The crates are =ade. I have to get export permits from the National Museum and I need the =ictures to get to the Museum so they can issue the permits.

I am sorry but this is a very third world. Please apologize =o your client. I hope to have pictures to show you within 24 =ours.

Best

The boards have been photographed and the photographs sent to the National Museum for an export permit. The crates are being made. My brother had to get some treated wood from Lae by ship as the US is very tough on crates these days.

Hi [REDACTED],

Just wanted to get any updates on the panels. If you could keep me informed of any progress that would be very much appreciated. Thank you.

The boards are now at my house [REDACTED]. I now have to have my brother photograph them and send the pictures to the PNG museum to get a permit to export. That will take a week or two with sufficient nagging. Then they can leave the country. I will keep you updated.

Hi [REDACTED],

Checking in again. Any word? Are you hopeful we will ever get the panels? I just need to know if I should be looking for alternatives? Thank you,

Hi [REDACTED],

Just checking in if you have any more info for me =n the progress of shipping the panels?

Thank you,

Dear [REDACTED],

I can get the panels shipped directly to =lorida. They will have to clear customs.
The =anels haven't made it into Wewak yet and my carpenter is =standing by to build plywood crates...
Will let you know as I do.

Hi [REDACTED],

Are you having the panels shipped to you first, =hen you will ship them to me? Or what's the best way to =o about this? Ultimately I need them to end up in St.Thomas, =SVI. We do have a freight forwarding company we use out =f Florida to have things shipped from the mainland, =ropical Shipping if you are having them shipped first to you =n California. Just trying to figure out all the =ogistics. Also, when will you need final payment from me? Thanks..

Dear [REDACTED],

I finally got an email this morning =aying the panels are ready. They want payment before =hey let them go and I wired money today. (The last =ot still haven't been paid for by the German buyer). =hey should be taken into Wewak next week and my =arpenter can then make the plywood crates for them. My =stimate would be 3 - 4 weeks from now. Sorry =t has taken so long. Communication is difficult.
