Any thoughts on this? Should we have someone from you= company come have a look to suggest a solution/material? Once we figure ou= what the best material to use for the size of the panels, I'd like to get a=photo printed 8'x8' as a test print to hold up in the space for my boss to see to get a sense if that's w=at he wants before proceeding with the final prints. I'm around all day tom=rrow and should be in the city all of next week as well. Let me know the be=t way to proceed with this. thanks

Hi guys. I had a closer look at the panels today and i= looks like the current images are a type of wall paper themselves. There a=e a few seams which don't line up as you can see in the photo. I don't thin= we want to compromise these, but rather try and mount something over them in case he wants to go back to=them one day. I'm not sure how we could mount something without damaging th=m? Would it make sense to have someone come have a look at these in person t= get a better sense for options and mounting possibilities?
