No need to put the moldy stinky rug in the room. I just thought if it was in ok shape it would work temporarily. I have a large rug being sent from ny to LSJ, maybe we can use that one for the time being once it arrives

Hi [REDACTED]

Update on rug, cleaners were here today, we all have reviewed the rug and everyone agrees that given the amount of mould on the underside of the rug, it is very unlikely that cleaning would remove the smell.

It was cleaned prior to the AC being turned off in the master Bedroom and it has been stored in a AC container.

It has taken 4 cleanings of the master Bedroom furniture to remove the smell and the rug is the worst of all the items, hence unless JE is really in love with this and is prepared to put up with the smell I would not place it is the Master

As of time construction is not finished in the master or for that matter anywhere, but we have moved bed/desk/closets into bedroom area, we are hoping to get in by Thursday

Mirror from Zorro was shipped out today, it took a little bit of time as it weights over 500lb - all being equal it should be in FL by the end of the week and will arrange to get it on the 1st boat out

Hoping all is well

Warmest regards

No problems, rug, not really in good shape, but will review and get back with you

JE would like the arm chair, ottoman, bench and desk which is in the kite house to be moved back to the master bedroom. He said the heavy stone table can go between the 2 canon balls under the TV.

Is the old bedroom carpet good enough to have cleaned and put back in the mater bed only temporarily until we get something new?
