5.0 out of 5 starsVitamix Certified Reconditioned Blender with Standard Programs

By M. Hill TOP 100 REVIEWER on June 26, 2014

Color: Platinum Vine Customer Review of Free product ( What's this? )

Buying a reconditioned Vitamix standard Program machine is a great option. Not only is the price significantly discounted, but the only measurable difference between it and a new machine is that the warranty is five instead of seven years.

I checked with customer service and was told no matter where the blender is purchased the extended warranty (an additional 3 years for a total of 8 years) can be added from their website for seventy-five dollars if done within 30 days of purchase. The serial number and a copy of the receipt are necessary. Additionally, the original warranty can be extended anytime before it expires but the price is increased to one hundred and twenty dollars.

I struggled with a basic blender and extractor juicer trying to healthy green smoothies but neither would properly liquefy tough greens, something this machine does effortlessly. I spent close to two hundred dollars on a juice extractor, and faithfully used it for about a month before I finally donated it to charity. Between the cost of the large quantities of produce needed to create a small glass of juice, refrigerator space appropriated for storage, the waste and the clean-up time it had to go.

There is no comparison between this machine and that one. Cleaning alone (fill the container half full with hot water and add a drop or two of dish detergent and run for a minute, rinse and drain to dry) is effortless. There is little waste because nothing is being extracted. The machine is powerful enough to pulverize fruits and vegetables so by simply adding a little water or ice to thin and cool the concoction the beverage is ready.

There is virtually no waste because where a pound of carrots were required to produce a small glass of juice, now one or two will do the same job. Read more

5.0 out of 5 starsYou can't go wrong with this machine, but no need to upgrade from earlier models.

By Jennifer VINE VOICE on June 27, 2014

Color: Platinum Vine Customer Review of Free product ( What's this? )

I was very interested in trying this model Vitamix as I currently own an older model (the 5000) and have been racking over the newer features. No, there was nothing at all wrong with my 5000 and it still worked perfectly but I really liked the newer container with the better handle grip...and the grass is always greener, right?

The short version?

If you have an older model that still works, there really is no need to spend the money to upgrade. There are slight differences between the two, but each gives you the same results. If you've never had a Vitamix and are tempted, you would not go wrong with this model.

THE MINOR DIFFERENCES:

5000: Nothing happens when you plug it in.

6300: When you plug it in, a blue light comes on (see photos).

5000: The lid is a bit hard to get on.

6300: The lid style changed and it's much easier to get on/off.

5000: The container has a simple plastic handle.

6300: The container style has changed and it has a more molded hand grip (see photos) which makes it easier to handle.

5000: There are two toggle switches--one to switch from variable to high speed and one to turn the machine on/off.

6300: There are two toggle switches--one for pulse and one to start/stop the machine (the machine is ON when you plug it in).

5000: When making a smoothie (juice, yogurt, protein powder, frozen whole strawberries), I just use high speed and it works fine.

6300: When making a smoothie, there's a smoothie setting. It wasn't as powerful as the high speed setting on the 5000 but it did get it mixed it just took a bit longer.

Overall, it's a great machine. That said, I personally don't see the need for the specific settings (smoothie, frozen desserts, soup) but they don't hurt anything. I've also never had a need for the pulse setting, but now that I have it, I will try it.

5.0 out of 5 stars AMAZING! You will know this as this 5200 Vitamix blender
By InfoFish on June 24, 2014

Color: Black Vine Customer Review of Free product ( What's this? )

Okay, I am so ready to start the war - Vitamix vs Blendtec vs Ninja vs Bullet (any bullet, nutribullet, baby bullet). NOBODY rocks a blender like Vitamix. This will be my FIFTH Vitamix (and I own the nutribullets and the Ninja and I SCOFF loudly at Blendtec). Here's the story... My family owned the stainless steel Vitamix blenders - from the Danbury Fair days! YES - the early 70's back when there was a REVERSE and the stainless steel container had a spigot! When I moved, I got to take that. A year later I picked up ANOTHER stainless steel 70's Vitamix at a church fair - for - wait for it - 50 cents!! When I had my first baby 10 years ago, I sold both Vitamixes on eBay to generate the cash to get a brand new Vitamix 4000 series. And we made EVERY single serving of baby food that our two kids ate. At $1++ a tiny serving for organic food - we blended the heck out of every organic squash, rice, banana, apple, cherry, broccoli, YOU NAME IT - we blended it - froze it into cubes and saved THOUSANDS of dollars in baby food. I just tell you that my kids are still on p. 1 of their pediatricians booklet - NEVER SICK - food was the key!

Anyhoo - this 5200 Vitamix Blender is a step up from the previous 4000 series I have. It is more powerful, quieter and =H SO COOL.

Now the comparisons:

Vitamix v. Ninja - Ninja is a kick-butt blender for the price - $110 at Costco on sale - and they do have the single serving thing going on that I have always thought that Vitamix should INCLUDE in their blender offering (they do have that now - but it is an add on). BUT - the Ninja is NO VITAMIX. The true test - peanut butter. =o comparison. 90 seconds to smooth, consistent AMAZING peanutbutter in =he 5200. Read more =E2
