Subject: Re: Update on Your Missoni for Target Order

wow. This is the worst shopping experience I have ever encountered. Worst customer service ever. Not only am I potentially not getting the items I had a confirmed order for, but I had items in my cart on your website when it just shut down in the middle of trying to check out, and of course lost all the items in my cart that I wished to purchase. I will not even bother wasting my time trying to buy something from your company again. A true waste of time.

my account <<https://www-secure.target.com/UserHome>> 1021122798) are out of stock.

Due to the unprecedented demand for our Missoni for Target collection, we are still working to fill outstanding Missoni orders. Some items may not be available and may need to be cancelled. Items we are able to fill could take up to the end of December to ship.

If you are no longer interested in receiving your Missoni for Target items, please visit either the My Account or Contact Us section of Target.com <<http://Target.com>> to cancel.

Within the next 10 business days you will receive additional email communication if any items from your order will be cancelled. We know this is disappointing and is not the experience you expect from Target. We are making improvements to better serve you in the future.

Sincerely,
