Jeff,

This is the current curriculum draft. It still needs work before being released but it should give you a good idea of what the training involves. We are still working on corporate image, website and other fine tuning.

Best,

John

Jeff,

If your assistant can put together a list of the staff you want trained as well as the areas where you feel they are lacking, I'll get some instructors on them so you can see what they are capable of.

Please bear in mind that the Estate Management class is 6 weeks/270 hours, so if we can focus on just the problem areas and not the entire curriculum, then that will be doable on a one-on-one basis. So, if you can pick one or two areas for each person, that will probably give the most realistic picture of what we are capable of doing.

Thanks

John

Hi Jeff,

Hope you are =ell.

What would it take to get you =nterested in a business venture in Palm Beach? I know you operate with =uch larger numbers and business dealings, but I really could use a =ilent partner in something great. If nothing else, it could maybe be a =un project for you to see grow?

I've been =orking on this for a long time and put together a plan for an Estate =anagement academy that has a lot of potential.

Training Estate Managers, house managers, housekeepers, personal assistants, chefs, nannies, drivers and security personnel at a school located in Palm Beach.

The largest domestic staffing agencies in the country love the idea and has agreed to send candidates to train.

I already have some of the best instructors and educators lined up, as well as a large mansion to rent that will give the students hands on, real life experience.

I need a modest investment to be able to pull the trigger to do this. Is this something you'd be interested in sitting down with me for 20 minutes so I can give you the sales pitch?

Best

John
