You did good w/the couples.

The Filipinos w/the kid won and when I see you Tues to discuss how we handle the transition I will explain why. It is pointless at this time to go through the list of things that was wrong with John unless it is to explain why he no longer has a job w/us at the time of transition.

I need to know a few more details regarding the couple

1. Where do they live currently?
2. You should indicate to them that we will make them a job offer and prior to it they need to fill out paper work - send them the paper work to fill out by fedex with a return fedex slip
3. I want to know what they are currently earning
4. Where are they planning to send the kid to school + What does the school cost

Do not make a formal offer just yet as I do not know when exactly they will start and we need to make a decision on how to make the transition and I need to figure out a package for them which is why I need their currently salary. Plse make sure that what ever no. they give you it is the accurate one as I will pick up the real no. on my search and I take and extremely dim view of any form of lie even that one which people think is acceptable. THey told me that the reason why they left their last employer (the one they worked for 4 years) was because of salary

I am v relieved and happy to have finally found someone

Thank you

G
