Dear Jeffrey,

Thank you very, very much for your email. I have been thinking about you for the past week, but I have honestly not wanted to disturb you as you have been very kind and generous with your time this autumn.

First of all, I hope that you are well wherever in the world you are!

I am sincerely and very very sorry that you think that I was un-polite when we last met. I asked the question to show my interest for Reid Hoffman and his background – NOT to be shameless, bold, and with no other intention than to show him that I was interested. I felt that it was too egoistic of me to sit there and only speak about my trip to Zimbabwe and myself. May I kindly ask, in this particular situation; what would you have advised me to talk about? What question would have been fine to ask? I must note, however, that it was such a privilege to meet you again and Reid Hoffman that morning.

I went to H&M the 8th of December as planned but a problem arose. I had, prior to departure, had meetings with the person responsible for visas at H&M. I had been told that all my papers were in order. However, I had not been advised that I needed an American social security number to work for them (I have been able to use my Swedish one for five years). H&M acknowledge that it was not my fault (as I had made sure that I fulfilled their requirements) but that I could not start to work until I have an American social security number. As it takes about 2 - 6 weeks to get one, I had to return home to Sweden (as it is too expensive to be in NY without a salary). I will return to NYC again after Christmas (probable before New Year Eve). Last week I got another possibility from an investor in NYC.

Jeffrey; I cannot enough articulate how sorry I am that my behavior came across as un-polite.

I also wanted to wish you a fantastic Christmas; may it be filled with much joy.

With warmest and best regards, how's the job, ? when you came to give me your kind gift. you did it again. you asked a friend of mine to tell you how he got started. ? a personal question to someone you don't know, .. he would not politely refuse as he is my guest. it was once again, focused on what you wanted, no consideration. no awareness. I'm sorry I had to ask you to leave. but. . . , I'm not sure how to get my point across.
