Whether they think about it or not, people take sides about reality. The dividing line separating science from spirituality was crossed long ago, and it doesn't take a lesson in philosophy or theology to pick up a smartphone. Therefore, by default reality for everyone is scientific reality. Let's set the old science versus spirituality divide aside and simply accept that science has taken a journey to the very origin of reality and returned with a story everyone essentially buys into by virtue of how rational and useful it is to live by science.

Yes you are correct

The point that we must get to is that everything we call the universe =s a human construct !

That includes our body mind and every object and thought ! It includes=Big Bang Black holes galaxies dark matter dark energy etc

What is the real reality and the source of the constructed reality .&n=sp;

I think the origin of reality is outside our ability to explain it&nbs=;

See you on Sunday
