
From:

Sent:

To:

[REDACTED]
Tuesday, March 15, 2016 1:44 PM

Jeffrey Epstein

I forgot to tell you... I went to see the Pope in Rome on Sunday while he was giving his speech. He told us a beautiful story about 2 women, both having a baby. During the night one woman suffocates her baby in her sleep (doesn't do it on purpose). Horrified of what happened, the day after she decides to switch babies with the other woman pretending the other one died. The women recognised it wasn't her baby but the other one wouldn't admit her sin. Since they couldn't find a compromise, they both went to see the king Salomon in order that he could figure out and decide who's going to keep the baby. Since they couldn't find out the truth, the king said: "O, at this point I will kill the baby" and the women screamed: "I killed it, please give it back to her real mother" and the king took the baby and gave it to the woman who screamed.

please note

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of [REDACTED].

Unauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return e-mail or by e-mail to [REDACTED], and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments. copyright -all rights reserved