Hi Jeffrey,

This apartme=t was my one chance to move out of my mothers house. Staying with my mom wa= never the plan for good. And I thought me helping out was so [REDACTED] c=uld travel with you, and now I found out she had a full time job, and made m=re money than I did. No one even thought it was important to discuss anythi=g with me and include me in that decision making. And I feel betrayed. I st=uggled this entire year with hopes that I could get an apartment for myself=and this was all I could come up with. And now I can't even claim her on my=tax return because she worked. What do you suggest I do? I think the b=st option is for me to get an annulment because her salary is causing probl=ms for my income,taxes and apartment. You both didn't think it important to=talk to me about all of this when my life is being effected as a result of [REDACTED] decisions. we aren't sharing income, yet her income is being consider=d into my mine. I agreed to do this even with all of the danger invol=ed because I cared about you and your happiness. And I feel like my happine=s wasn't even considered. I'm not asking for some of her money, just a= annulment so I can live the life I want based on my income.

Thanks,
