

---

From: Lesley Groff [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, October 20, 2016 11:00 AM
To: Jefffrey Epstein
Subject: Peter Fenwick

below from Peter Fenwick:

Hi Jeffery,
Thanks for the questions,
We are social animals and have a whole =ormonal system which needs to be activated by touch. We also live =n a dominance and social hierarchy and these are important for the =mooth functioning of the psychology. Not only the psychological =ide but also the physical side, we are imbedded in a structured =nvironment and many factors eg the 24 hour light and dark cycle, =nbsp;are embedded in our bodily rhythms. So we are creatures of =ur environment and isolation from it, (Unless one is a bear in =ibernation and specially adapted) will bring some bodily and mental =ysfunction. Remember sensory isolation destroys your mental =orld.

We =re all in Monaco now for three days any chance of seeing you? =lain tells me that you have considerable publicity!

Will be in contact on =y return, is there a possibility of seeing you in Paris, since you =on't come to London?

Best wishes,
Peter

=