Thanks Glen !

Spin charge electrons particles are human constructs for modes of knowin= and experience in awareness--in this case mathematical abstractions in hu=an consciousness. Macro objects are also human construct= for modes of perceptual experiences. This includes the macro object called brain . An object ( brain ) experienced in awarene=s cannot be the source of awareness. If there is a reality outside of=human knowing or experience it is by definition unknowable

Consciousness is non local and formless. Its excitations as qualia--sens=tions , images, feelings & thoughts create the illusion of space time =ausality and observer independent reality .

Menas and I elaborate this in our book particularly in the section on qu=lia mechanics

On a more serious note, here's my interpretation of Deepak's statement "4D reality (small r) is virtual"

Thus it is not physical. Some Eastern traditions believe reality is an illusion. Thus, what we see is not what is out there. What we see is our brain's interpretation.

"Space/time is not fundamental"

Most eastern traditions say consciousness is fundamental. Reality manifests from consciousness and consciousness is in everything (living and non-living) "Fundamental reality is formless"

Fundamental Reality (capital R) or consciousness is not physical, has no mass, charge, spin or form.

This clearly contradicts what most neuroscientists believe, that the mind is a manifestation of the brain.

This philosophy states the mind (individual consciousness) like everything else is derived from Universal consciousness.

My last two presentations at FOM proposed a phase conjugation-based mechanism for converting universal consciousness into virtual energy which I believe is the fundamental nature of the mind.
