
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Saturday, December 5, 2015 10:51 PM
To: jeevacation@gmail.com
Subject: for Noam Chomsky

An exhausted traveler has been to an almost=20 infinite number of hotels unsuccessfully looking for a room.
When he sees "The Infinity Hotel," he's sure=he's going to find a room.
But the desk clerk tells him, "Yes, we do hav= an infinite number of rooms, but they're all filled."
The traveler says, "If you would, please put the guest in room 1 into room 2, room 2 into room 3, etc., and th=n just put me in room 1."
The clerk says, "I can't do that, sir. This=isn't that kind of joke."