if one looks at probability distributions. it could appear that the curve is a result of being acted on by a pseudo force. pushing agents towards the center. the activity of change more along the curve ( membrane ) one agent moves up the other down so the distribution remains the same?

At harvard last week i hosted a group discussing deception. the cost benefit. camouflage. misinformation, disinformation, etc , the feeling was that the role of your ergo could be the system designed to read the inner workings of your predator=or your prey. instilling false signals , is a cheap protection.

anyway hope to see you soon
