thi= is the first essay on why I want to move in Paris and attend AUP (300 wor=s)

What attr=cts you the most about coming to The American University of Paris and how do you believe the experience of living in Paris will change you?

My mother is from Paris and I have been to Paris on many occasions. I feel strongly connected to this European capital from many perspectives, includi=g family and education.

Among my most recent visits to Paris, there are a few fashion shows that I attend=d: in October 2013 I attended Chanel's spring and summer ready-to-wear=show and in January 2014 the Chanel and Valentino haute couture show; then in November =014 I attended the Parisian Debutantes Ball (representing Chanel), where I met people from across the world. Every time I spend time in Paris I was able t= feel how vibrant and beautiful this city is and how much it has to offer because=of the artistic and historical richness of Paris. I have benefitted from also living in Rome, which is where I initially developed an appreciation for ar=s and culture, museums, the opera and discovering Italy's wealth of cultu=al offerings very soon, realizing that I wanted to pursue my passion for art history at AUP.

Attending The American University of Paris would also represent the natural evolution=of my education, both received at home and in school: my father is Italian but=my mother is French and thanks to her I attended the French Lycée in Rome= earning a French Baccalauréat with a major in Economic and Social Sciences. I =m fluent in Italian and French, but also in English because I studied it in school a=d mastered it during my frequent trips to the United States, where my two stepbrothers live. I have been exposed and appreciate the American culture =ecause of my internships with Bulgari's US office, in Los Angeles and the Ferragamo US PR department in New York City. My family origin and the education I received seem to lead me to an American University in Paris whe=e I will be able to put my skills into practice and pursue my academic objectiv=s and goals.

Studying art history at the American University of Paris would be a great opportunit= to further discover the French culture. I believe that the education I will acquire by completing an AUP undergraduat= program, coupled with additional internship experience, will equip me with all neces=sary skills to achieve my future career goal to work in the art or fashion indus=ry.
