This is a vent, but not appropriate or productive.

Just landed in NY. Will call as soon as I can. =e are going to hire a PR firm to help with the latest articles. I also nee= to hire a lawyer to make sure everything I say is OK, but I'm sick of=not saying anything. I've written down a few thoughts on the plane: =C2♦I'm sure it's too much info, but here is first draft. </=iv>

I vehemently deny any=allegations that I so called "helped procure" prostitutes for JE= I used to be an executive assistant who scheduled appointments for Mr E.;some of these appointments were for massages. I was never privy to what to=k place during those massages. I never had anyone complain to me that some=hing untoward was happening, nor did I ever witness anything questionabl= take place. I had never seen any of these masseuses before until they arr=ved at the house of their own accord; they certainly did not look underage=to me. I knew nothing about them. I never spoke to them other than to sche=ule massage appointments. I'm sorry if these women now regret their ac=ions and professions, but I had nothing to do with it. I'm sure the al=ure of making millions off their regrettable decisions is enticing, especi=llly when their lawyers are willing to work for free to make a name for the=selves. I have been unfairly victimized by these Jane Does, whom I don'=t even know who they are, their lawyers, and by the media making up endles= lies about me and making up outrageous allegations all because I followed=the advice of my lawyers to plead the Fifth for every single question</=> asked of me, even a question as simple as "what is your name?"=I plead the Fifth on, in a civil suit which I was subpoenaed for. I was a =oung woman whom all of a sudden my name was caught up in something which I=had no involvement with. I wanted nothing more than to answer all the ques=ions asked of me by those unscrupulous lawyers, but felt it was best to fo=llow the advice of my own lawyers to plead the Fifth; what did I know about=the legal system? So that's what I did and am still paying the price 9=years later. I'm tired of allowing the media to abuse me to sell newsp=pers and not defending myself against it.

True, I once worked for JE and lived in an apt on 66=h St. I started my interior design business in 2006 while also working for=JE. Since I couldn't afford a separate office at the time, I used my h=me address for my business address. I no longer live at that address, nor =ave I conducted business from that address for many years.

If=the press can't even get these simple facts correct, how can we believ= anything else they are writing about?
