Spoke with Brice & Jonas. Brice sounds to be helpful today.

Jonas is recommending setting the basestations to use the same channel throughout the house, which I've asked him to implement. I asked him to make sure the Cradlepoint is doing the routing for the network and all the basestations are in bridge mode and walk through the house and confirm the speeds are consistent.

Jonas thinks that moving the antenna to the roof may get a faster signal and keep it out of sight aesthetically.

He also suggested replacing the Cradlepoint/Feeney modem with a Peplink router instead. I haven't heard of the company, so I'll research it and see if it's advantageous.
