I commented earlier that I believe his condition is very fragile and he can die at any point; I would be surprised if he lasts 3 weeks; (note I have not SEEN him in 10 months). Linda has lost it but since =ARREN requested he die at home I think it would be best if Linda has the proper supports and he stays at home. I talk to her daily and I think =he will get by; she will collapse emotionally once he does die irrespective of if it is in his home or at a facility. As long as she knows we are supporting her I think it can be done. Years from now there wont be any =uilt she didn't carry out his last wishes. There is no getting around the = profound sadness of this miserable death.

With your experience how much longer do you =hink he has? Also, as this progresses do you think he will reach a point where he is no longer aware of his surroundings? If so, at that =oint it might be best for Linda's sake to move him to a care=facility.

I agree, lets try to keep him at home. His dignit= is shot and his situation is irrevsersable. Let him stay in his own=bed and pass in peace. This is still so surreal to me.</=:p>

From: MICHAEL BUCHHOLTZ [Very generous=of you . He probably should be in a facility but he wanted to die at =ome. I'm hoping with basic 24 hour/around the clock assistance; the h=spice team as needed, and my talking to her Linda will get through it.&nbs=;If it becomes intolerable and he is truly out of it I'm sure he can be mo=ed. For now lets try to follow his request. <mailto: [REDACTED] _djrealurl=>
