I have no time for pussy footing around these issues. I only want blunt assessments. So your advice (and the manner in which it is delivered) is most welcome.

In some of the cases below, we think we are realistically constrained by Leon's approach to his art. We think he should do the things you suggest. But he does not seem to want to do--even where we have explained the economic incentives to do so.

We will keep trying, with your help.

I will have more specific answers to some of your questions.
