Good morning Richard,

We are currently building the first prototype which will be tested out on the Seine river in Paris this summer. Due to the heavy regulation in France, we are already building another prototype which will go faster and should be implemented in more cities, including New York and San Francisco in the US.

We are not able to communicate a price right now but are offering different business models, partnering up with governments, companies or even private people.

Please feel free to reach out to me if you would like any other information,
Best,

Joséphine,
