Students and teachers discover the benefits of the PLAYshop methodology!
</=iv>

We train teachers and school staff valuable methods -- =productive, safe tools developed over a dozen years of international =isaster relief work -- that help to relieve stress and trauma in the =lassroom and at home.

In February, we spent three days in Bristol, Connecticut training the staff at two schools in the PLAYshop methodology. Both staff and students quickly experienced the immediate benefits.

Here's what the participants said:

"It's a great stress release. I find children have a burden of WAY too much stress in their lives."

--Teacher

"During the PLAYshop, I felt very loose and energetic. I also felt silly and playful. Later that day, I felt calm, less stressed, and more playful."

--Student

"I tried to go into the PLAYshop with an open mind. It was awkward at first, however, once I just "let go" it was a type of relief. Afterward, I was able to have a new light on how my students are actually feeling."

--Teacher

"During the PLAYshop I had a lot of fun and I laughed my face off. After I felt calm and relaxed. Later that day I used the breathing techniques to continue releasing my stress."

--Student

"I tried it a few times in my class to relax and get the jitters out and they responded well."

--Teacher

"It definitely released some tension!" --Teacher
