Congratulations to Hebrew University Professor Amnon Shashua, the founder of Mobileye, for delivering life-saving technology and setting a record for an Israeli IPO in the US.

Mobileye, maker of automobile collision avoidance technology, raised $890 million, the largest first-day gain for a U.S.-listed IPO since Twitter's November debut, when it went public in the US last week.

Visitors to the Western Wall in Jerusalem can see that some of its stones are extremely eroded. This is good news for people placing prayer notes in the wall's cracks and crevices, but presents a problem for engineers concerned about the structure's stability. However, research could guide development of new preservation techniques for weakened structures.
