We w=ll of course do this in whatever sequence makes sense for you. =t goes without saying that any move would need to make economic sense. &nbs=; My assumption has been that your comp would fall outside of our "bel= curve", but that is not an issue for us as long as the potential contribut=on also falls outside. You would not be the only partner outsid= the curve, and I am comfortable with expanding that group for people who c=n genuinely move the needle while embracing the culture that makes us who w= are.

One benefit of having M=chael in the mix is that he can provide a global perspective, and he would b= important for explaining the case outside the US if we moved forward.

Just let me know when and how you want to speak=next.

Best,

Steve

Hi Steve,

=span>I am still intrigued and would like to meet Michael. I thinks it=makes sense, though, for us to have a more specific conversation about comp=nsation before I meet with him. I don't want to put the cart before t=e horse, but as I mentioned, this would be a big move for me, and it would h=ve to make sense economically in addition to being the right move for other=reasons we have discussed.

I hope you are w=ll. Cannot believe that Christie endorsed Trump!

Best,

Kathy

I don't want=to pester you, but in the hope that you are still intrigued, I wanted to su=gest that we try to set up an opportunity for you to meet Michael Davison, o=r global head of litigation. Mlchael is an International Arbitr=tion specialist based in London and a key player. He is also a l=t of fun, notwithstanding his Scottish upbringing.

Let me know.
