
From: Nowak, Martin [REDACTED]
Sent: Sunday, February 7, 2016 11:01 PM
To: JE NY
Subject: Fwd: Winter Weather Update

fyi

Begin forwarded message:

From: Office of the Executive Vice President <[REDACTED]>
Date: February 7, 2016 at 5:44:08 PM EST

[REDACTED]
Subject: Winter Weather Update

=ear colleagues,

=/span>

=arvard University has been closely monitoring the progress of the winter w=ather event that is expected to arrive early Monday morning and to continue for much of tomorrow. A Win=er Storm Warning has been issued for the Boston region, with snowfall expe=ted to begin around 6 am and total accumulations to reach 8 to 12 inches or more over the course of the day. Morning commutes throughout the region wil= likely be affected.

=/span>

=ough schedules at individual Harvard Schools may vary depending on local =onditions, the University and Central Administration currently expect to be open as scheduled Monday. Any individual School wi=th specific schedule alterations will communicate directly with their commu=ities.

=/span>

=s always, the safety of students, faculty and staff is paramount. Al= Harvard community members are urged to exercise caution as they travel to and from campus Monday.

=/span>

=e understand that travel may be difficult. Those who need to significantly=alter their work schedules due to unsafe travel conditions in their local areas or due to other personal circumstances (such as child=are needs) should be in contact with their supervisors.

=/span>

=s always, faculty, students and staff should be guided by their School lea=ership, with whom they should be in touch with any questions.

=/span>

=ny updates overnight or tomorrow will be posted to Harvard's eme=gency page <<http://www.harvard.edu/emergency>> and at 617-496-NEWS.

=/span>

=incerely,

=/span>

=atie Lapp

=xecutive Vice President