Looking at my night stand, I am reminded of you. The books are a result of years of influence. And such great influence. One book was a recommendation from your friend, the MIT professor. Another is on Space Colonies because, well, that's fun! But really, the book was put together by Stewart Brand, a name that would have remained unfamiliar had it not been for privileged visits to TED. And also my love for science fiction, that was never discouraged, always included, only grew as a result of you and meeting the many brilliant influences around you everyday. Thank you for this, and so much more. Thinking of you and missing you!
