For media purposes? I think it will be very difficult to change the narrative at this point, her comments will be discounted as biased (e.g., do you provide any ongoing financial support?), and it would bring her much unwanted attention. I think the only way we would want to use this (potentially) is in the context of the longer, smarter piece that we have talked about considering -- New Yorker, etc. Depending on what happens with the CVRA case, this could be important in that context too.
