Dear Jeffrey,

I apologize for being late with this but I wanted to thank you for having had me over to our magnificent house for tea last Saturday. Even if I was a little quiet (!), I was fascinated by what I learnt from the conversation with our most distinguished/brilliant guests. The penny has now finally dropped and I think that I have correctly identified the origin of hislaine's confusion regarding my involvement in neuroscience! I am hosting a cocktail party on December 14th for a friend of mine who's uncle is a Professor in neurology (french!) and I had invited her. I must say that this has been very far from my mind these past weeks because I was fully focused on the event which I had been working on for such a long time which was the launch of Global Kids in Washington DC which happened Monday night at the French Embassy and which was a total success I am proud to say. Anyway this is my guess as to what occurred, and all this to say thank you and that I would love it if you would come on the 14th.

Very best,
