

To: jeffrey epstein[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: roger schank
Sent: Sun 7/18/2010 12:59:14 PM Subject: thoughts on growing old

I think the question for smart people in later life is: "what are you going to attempt that is really difficult to do?"

I know how to be a famous professor and you know how to make money boring; you cant keep that shit up without atrophy pick something very hard, or nearly impossible and attempt to accomplish it this is why I lost interest in pussy; I knew I could have any girl I wanted on my terms; done my goals: revolutionizing education; building a smart (and useful) machine; getting better physically and athletically these are all nearly impossible and thus they keep me mentally alive you need to pick some impossible stuff to focus on just my opinion

roger schank
<http://www.rogerschank.com/>