Can we please not bicker anymore? I am appreciative and make it point to thank you when things happen. There is nothing irrational about expecting that.

When I get another angry email saying "you didn't say thank you " before anything happens or is even scheduled, that's a little strange considering the circumstances. Do you understand that the last thing I am trying to do is to annoy you? I don't want to go through this, these conversations are so petty. What would you like me to say?

PS: I went riding today, Thank You. The ranch is the most beautiful place to visit; Thank You for letting me stay here again and thank you for the Dallas trip and the FMS class and having your staff watch [REDACTED] E.

i am always open to the idea that i am not right,, I have asked [REDACTED], leon, [REDACTED], gary, not one person , corroborated your line. i realize they might be afraid, so i ask that examples be given. you have suggested that expecting you to be appreciative or say thank you. seems irrational behavior.
