i just flew home on greenjet which essentially is a maturing startup with a good plan.they own no planes and you buy seats at about 30 percent more than 1st class and the planes are correct for distance flown ie lear to fla,falcon to la.anyhow im intrigued and i mentioned it to criton and told him i would get some material for him to show you.

anyhow what prompts the email is the other passenger is jennie saunders whos really excited about this co. and actually has a conf call with them tomorrow and she asked me to join in which i will.

we eventually got around to talking about you, nice things all.she really cares about you. i promised her i would write you and invite you in to explore so if you have interest we will get you info as we get it/hope all well.sorry we didnt get to see you.
