I do not believe Peter said that to you. It's like Zeff, and the reality is that aside from buying two lamps you are no further along with that project than you were six weeks ago, from my hospital bed in london I could have helped you get further ahead..which leaves the reason as to why you left me stranded -again- with my hands tied - open for question.

You have totally out of whack expectations with all of your craziness and clearly have no gage for when to consider holding off, putting aside your impulses for one moment in light of something greater, and jeffrey if you're going to tell me there's nothing else worth occassionally nourishing, then I'm sorry but, I feel sorry for you.
