Jeff,

Just want you to know that I DO hear you and I DO listen. Again, we have enough in place, to put the focus on achieving your goal, so that it does not continue to happen. This stuff is widely out there, and I can not obviously guarantee that it will not happen again, but one can lessen the din (and direct the negative to the positive, which you now definitely have), and so that not everyone is lost. You can put all the components of a television together, but if you don't have an electrical plug, you won't get much reception. You, at least know, we will give it our all... Truly. I don't accept failure in my work product, and I won't let it happen. I only allow for excellence, it is my curse. Just what you will get out of me and my team. Besides, it isn't all reputation management, it does allow for some good things that are in line with your foundational work....

Best,
me
