Subject: women leaders

You made me think the other night when you said that there was a hunger (increased demand) for women in leadership roles. So I looked at the leadership in G20 countries (including cabinet posts) and also the fortune 500 companies and most of the senior vice presidents - and finally the Forbes "power" lists. I figured that at least covered the basics.

What I found was interesting.

1. 98% of the women who are wealthy are either wives, ex-wives or daughters of wealthy men.
2. 78% of the women who are "powerful" are wives or ex-wives - or a whole different category (media/music, etc)
3. More than 50% of the business elite ladies are gay
4. Elected women leaders are really butch!
5. Women cabinet members have a very high turnover rate when there is a woman leader (women can't work with women) and there are without exception many more women in cabinet positions when a man is in the top spot than when a woman is there

Stuff like that.

Moral : be gay.
