I wish I could use all my creativity and powers to make it all go away instantaneously, but I can't; however, it is not a hopeless case, based on our analysis of it, and the secret lies primarily in the number of links to the bad articles (we have analyzed how many links per article). Now, our group in the philippines is building links and links to our sites, pseudo sites, and the other jeffrey epsteins of the world. When this all important process is finished, and the bots troll the web again, and see we have sites of content, properly formatted, etc., linked, blah, blah, blah, then, the old sites will just get moved out of the way. Poof. We just need more links then them.

The greater number of links, then the higher the ranking....

Jeffrey, it's all mathematics, that's all it is, and all it ever will be.
