You may actually have enjoyed yesterday's festivities. Ran into some very close friends of yours, who immediately asked me how I knew you. I was surprised, but they independently came across the interview that I posted between us, and read it. They were really "impressed," that you gave such an "incredible" interview. Thought the whole thing was "brilliant." Asked me how I "got you so on track with the questions."... so, ha. They also thought the site was "extremely impressive" and coming along very nicely.

In answer to your question. No, Keesling is not associated with Nathan in any way. Furthermore, if I used someone from Nathan's company, you should fire me immediately, as it would mean that I picked someone who has no basis in practical, immediate results, but is only interested in pie-in-the-sky, far off and unrealistic solutions. It was my understanding you needed quick and real results. I got someone who could do this, and I could manage, "an "out of the box thinker, who wasn't interested in turning this into a "business."

And, also, if you can list any people who you have so generously supported in the past, or have deep friendships with, such as Danny, Marvin, Nathan, Pablos, Gerald, Murray, etc. ANYONE on your list, who would take stop what they are doing to help with this, at the level of excellence we are doing, please let me know, and at no pay, please let me know.

Let me get on with what we are trying to...

I am going to have to create the two articles. They will NOT be in your own voice, they will be somewhat different than mine, I will do my best, but they will be signed by you.

My cell phone has been misplaced, or accidentally taken yesterday, and I have lost my contacts. I need to search for it.

Will catch up later.

Remember Jeff, arm around, not backslap to the head, ok?
Thanks and appreciate your understanding in this regard.

Yours,
me
