Subject: IT

I sent out a bunch of emails this morning so let's see what we get back. I asked Stevie and he said he didn't know anyone that did IT, but he did want to dump a few idiots that work for him. Ha ha.

Some things you might consider:
1. Jaron Lanier (do you want me to ask him on your behalf or have you already asked him?)
2. ██████ might know (but then you owe her...)

Other suggestion:
Call the head of the NYU or Princeton Computer Science Departments and tell them you need full time IT support. There are TONS of fab computer science grad students that I am sure would jump on an opportunity.
