"fixing europes single currency" special section interesting.

I don't understand this like you do but seems to me that the problem is that there is no base standard anywhere so measuring "against" one or another is hard bd of moving targets.

Would the proposed "unec" change all that?

Was thinking last night that the "unec" if not done well could be the Esperanto of the economic world.

Also I need new sunglasses and my nose is more French than American. On one of your walkabouts in Paris will you scope out some black shades for me?
