jeffrey, i cant accept your accusations i'm sorry. you never once made it clear that i was to direct Zeff nor that i was to be the one really responsible for getting the cabanas done. i intentionally took a step back to be less directive, once you told me three weeks ago that [REDACTED] and i would work together on doing it , i felt it necessary to be sensitive to her suggestions and desires.

if i sometimes seem punchy in my nature, i am no different from you in that regard, in fact you exhibit exactly the same trait, it is part of my liveliness and personality. it is not anger. i am willing to re-assess my delivery but you pay me for my opinion and that is what i give.

i've really given you as much as you've asked for, and for the rest, been totally confused about where you're really going with what you want .

that being said i love you and support you as a person, without doubt you are someone who is intricately and intimately woven into the fabric of my life. it is important we take care.

for the rest i suggest we discuss in person ~ not via email ~ please call if you want to share
