hi jeffrey,

..so probably you saw al the samples i did. brice said he's going to take pictures and e-mail them to you. but anyway you have to see them in real.

they all look pretty good. those with venetian plaster too. they installed in the bathroom the top counter, but after i did the samples on the wall in the bathroom...and somehow it doesnt look too good with this kind of finish. its a little bit too shining. you will see. maybe some stone somehow similar to that at the bottom of the wimdwow would have been looked better... but too late now.

regarding to the ceiling in the office, it looks pretty good, they need to put just one coat or two of gesso and that its going to take just one day or two. but in order to do that they have to put the scafolding, so i talked to gary cunny and i think its better to do that after they're going to finish the cabinets, otherwise they have to put the scafolding, then take it off then put it again...

i think doing all the cabanas and the bathrooms its gonna go fast. if we do with venetian plaster its going to take a little more time because i have to put three coats of venetian plaster..

anyway i think in two three weeks they might be all done but i might need another person..i i dont know if i can control the painting for a big wall, because i have to go up and down back and forth to keep the paint wet.. its a little complicat to do this finish..its like a big painting..

i might need to buy more materials too.

gary or brice told me that you are going to go to the island oct 7th, then after you gonna choose the sample i can start painting the cabanas.

till then, do you want me to do something else here in new york?

thank you,
ion
