The very same [REDACTED] [REDACTED].

What is [REDACTED] story? Not too pretty. He was wearing a pale grey knit leisure suit, matching trousers and a soft jacket, a black shirt, no socks and black shoes. Maybe [REDACTED] Prince Andrew can get him to a good tailor.

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] That look was tragic amid the palazzo's 14th century treasures.

The other best friend staying there was Marie Bucellati and her handsome husband, Mr. Bucellati who actually designs their line.

Marie was meant to marry Lawrence Graff's son years ago, lost both parents and the Graff's are her surrogate family. She is another mid-level ex model and arrives today with her clothing line.

Then there was a shoe manufacturer Luise Rossi married to Roberta. They gave Peter Brant, Tony Shafazi, Lawrence Graff and me a ride in their own boat after Sophia's "Somewhere" from the Lido.

He owns many of Warhols gold shoe drawings and I took Peter to their palazzo on the Grand Canal to see them. You would not know a shoe man...but I tell you this as an example of how I will talk to anyone with their own boat (to save $100.00) and end up in their living room.

There is an unspoken international club of NEW rich people. If you are in the same 20 watering holes they all frequent and can drop the names of 20 richer people, you are "in." (Of course advance people tell these new people that I run New York, and having never heard of me or the screenings, adopt me instantly.)

Will call you tomorrow about dinner. Had a really interesting time. The more I travel...the more I meet such interesting people...

Met this Saudi, [REDACTED] ... [REDACTED] Prince Andrew... [REDACTED] very friendly with him.

Do you know them? [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] furnishings reminiscent of a Vegas bordello. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] He is charming but no taste...and looks like the Arab he is.

Are you around NY? PEG
