Tim Collins tried to reach me this morning. Told him I'm busy following your dismissive advice and told him I can speak after 6pm UK time. He called me now:

- he was extremely nice to me
- he had discussions with Lenny Fisher, his CEO, and they want to move forward
- while they have not been to China he thinks he can get his own contacts (I answered very dismissive) and then he said "but your knowledge would be very valuable"
- they checked my background (??)
- he can not do general formula on deals now because they differ greatly but he suggests case by case basis
- they will cover my overheads/fixed costs depending how much this is since they are "very cost sensitive"
- He asked how much the fixed costs are, I told him I am now working on other stuff and can not give a figure right away but will think about his suggestion. He asked me to email him asap so we can move this forward.
(You suggested GBP 250k but I didn't say anything yet)
