I used to keep an eye on my screen all the time. When the lifestreams project died (& was canonized, stolen, etc), I stopped just out of sullenness. Have to get back. The lifestream had everything in it; by watching it, I watched my life. The new one (if it exists) will have emails, appts, memos etc like the old one (if I don't have time to answer some email, I kick it forward in time & it rolls around again) & social-net updates, RSS, texts, vmail & other cross-net stuff. My whole digital life flows through the stream -- which puts me in control of time--
