I would never have a reason to use that office if it was upstairs in a dark bedroom. I would end up working on my laptop instead. You should absolutely have privacy with guests in the living room but that doesn't mean I now have to sit and wait in the back bedroom like the prosties you keep there.

It would be difficult to also serve you during your dinners if I was in the bedroom. The reason I am downstairs is so I can hear when you yell my name and ask for something but I can use the kitchen office instead so you have privacy.
