Subject: FLYP

Here are some things I've been up to:

FLYP, an on-line magazine. (FLYPmedia.com). The current issue is a special Nonesuch Records, but most issues contain art, politics, economics, science... Over the last year, they've published about 33 bi-weekly issues, and assorted shorter specials.

They've made me Editor-at-Large after I've done a series of art and non-art pieces for them during their last three months.

My interview with Pulitzer prize winning composer Steve Reich and his wife Beryl Korot is a good one... <http://www.flypmedia.com/issues/29/#8/1>

I like the piece I did on Brice Marden (<http://www.flypmedia.com/issues/28/#5/1>), and the cover story I did on the human rights group called Witness is pretty good (<http://www.flypmedia.com/issues/30/#1/1>).

I'm enjoying this new identity, but it may be short-lived if I can't figure out a way to help turn this into a real business.

I've also been hired as special assistant to the president of SVA (School of Visual Arts) to help them think through a new low-res graduate program. (I'm also teaching there since last spring semester).

Trying to figure out how to recoup the $200,000 I'm owed by my former "partner" in London, who has filed for the British equiv of chapter 11.
