

To: Jeffrey Epstein[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: roger schank
Sent: Wed 7/15/2009 1:28:37 PM
Subject: Re: back in the ussr

the idea is to talk about leaders while actually talking about AI; I dont much see the difference anyhow and and can go with the metaphor; I go up there in 2 weeks to giver a talk to them about AI (ARPA) -- anyone I should meet in DC while there?

roger schank
<http://www.rogerschank.com/>

On Jul 15, 2009, at 9:23 AM, Jeffrey Epstein wrote:

the armyis not intersted in smart, they are intersted in leaders, strategists, i want you to get your funding,, so i would ask more questions of them first..

On Wed, Jul 15, 2009 at 9:17 AM, roger schank [REDACTED] > wrote:

well I was discussing being smart; that was the point of the exercise really; this is supposed to help fund AI after all

roger schank
<http://www.rogerschank.com/>

On Jul 15, 2009, at 9:13 AM, Jeffrey Epstein wrote:

re send it,, as i recall you were describing a smart person , but not necessarily a leader,, in fact smart might preclude being a leader. , forced interaction with the large numbers of goofballs. is a coach a good leader, instilling team spirit, etc.. BORING ,, probably leaders are genetically pre conditioned to motivate others. great leaders --hitler? baby doc., michael jackson, billy graham, colin powell, reagan, opinion shapers.

On Wed, Jul 15, 2009 at 9:05 AM, roger schank <[REDACTED]> wrote:

I'm back; hope things still fine
you had a suggestion to add to my leadership paper which is now ready for 2nd phase after arpa approval; I cant remember it

roger schank
<http://www.rogerschank.com/>